

The Conference for Higher Education site is currently undergoing some improvements. The overall objective of the Sisters of Conference for Higher Education web site is for it to be used primarily as a communication tool. I have enabled it so the users of the web site have several options available to them.

1. Blogging
2. Bulletin Board System
3. Chat
4. Content Management

I will begin to add members of the Conference for Higher Education to the website soon. I would advise anyone who is interested also to register as a user or contact me at admin@mercyhighered.org. I have integrated several systems to work in tandem with one logon. The idea is to logon and go. With your logon you will be able to use the blogging system, bulletin board system, chat, and content management system. (Each of these components has a web front end and a web back end.) The front end simply displays content where the backend eliminates the need for expensive software to update the site. I have made it easier for people to manage by creating links on the side navigation under the category Administration and Communication; these links enable the users to take advantage of the site. They must be logged in to achieve the full benefits of using the system. (Please refer to the movie link here or under the Page category labeled visual demo.) You can also select the PDF Help link located under the Administration and Communication link category. This system was created using open source technology and uses PHPBB2, Word Press. I will be adding more features and more web site styles as time goes by. If you are a member of the Conference for Higher Education you can request an e-mail address from MercyHigherEd.org as well.

Link Explanation

1. The Administration link will allow you access to the backend of the site allowing you to post blogs to use this option you must create a login or have a login.

2. The Bulletin Board system allows for communication of different topics among the committee members. It is a good place to discuss different issues facing the campus community as a whole.
3. Bulletin Board (Flash Skin) is the same bulletin board with a different interface you can use either display to communicate it is a matter of what you are comfortable with!
4. The Chat allows for on-line meetings or conversations this will help the Sisters of Mercy communicate their ideas easily!
5. Login enables you to take advantage of the system!

(Administration Link goes to this page once you have logged in!) This is a snap shot of the Backend of the site once you login you are give a number of options. You can use the dashboard to navigate to the write option this will allow you to create blogs a snap shot of the write option is displayed below.

You can create posts, upload images, and create links in your text easily without the need for an expensive software package. The Write Post option also use an intuitive interface similar to some of the options you might find in the software package word.
