

CONFERENCE^{for}MERCY HIGHER EDUCATION

Mercy Roundtable 2025 Framing Questions

Our Catholic identity and Mercy mission call us to “welcome the stranger.” In what ways does this call resound for me in my own personal attitudes and response to the issues of immigration/migration?

How can I integrate the concept of “welcoming the stranger” into my classroom?

How might those desperately fleeing from their homelands feel when they are treated as aliens and not treated as human beings with dignity and respect?

What in me resists welcoming the immigrant?

In what way do I need to open my heart to nonviolence when considering immigration?

